JAPS CONTINUE ONSLAUGHT ON NANKING WALLS

(Chinese Declare That Only One Gate Has Been Taken)

ENEMY, HOWEVER,
ENCIRCLES CITY

Terrific Fighting, With Casualties High, Is Reported

(By Associated Press)
SHANGHAI, Dec. 11.—Nanking, already under fierce Japanese attack from all sides but its Yangtze river front on the northwest, yesterday was threatened with complete encirclement.

Although desperate Chinese resistance apparently kept the Japanese from extending the small pocket they gained late Friday made the walls, all avenues of escape for the defenders were readily being cut off.

Japs Take Wuhu
Wuhu, strategic Yangtze port 60 miles above Nanking, was in Japanese hands.

Japanese sources reported that a strong column, which earlier had captured Taiping, on the south bank of the river halfway between Wuhu and Nanking, had crossed the Yangtze and begun a march downstream.

This force was said to have captured Wukiang, only 10 miles northwest of Pukow, the railroad of the Tientsin-Pukow railway opposite Nanking. Pukow was the column's objective, and if it falls the main avenue of escape from Nanking will be closed.

Already this Japanese maneuver was said to have compelled large bodies of Chinese troops retreating up the Yangtze to turn northward, seeking to flee by the railway from Pukow.

Holding Their Own
A Chinese account of the battle at Nanking said the defenders were holding their own. According to British dispatches from Hankow, General Tang Seng-Chi, commanding the defense of Nanking, telegraphed to Chinese leaders at Hankow declaring Chinese morale still high and the situation favorable.

General Tang was said to have admitted the loss of Kuanghuamen, the main southeastern gate, which Japanese reported they had captured Friday. But he declared the defenders had been unable to make further headway into the city.
Fighting was terrific, and casualties high.

Wind, Sleet and Snow Play Havoc

Top—Here is what a 70-mile-an-hour gale did to the waterfront at Provincetown, Mass., on the tip of Cape Cod. This is all that is left of a huge cold-storage wharf, which collapsed under the lashing of mountainous seas. The knife-like northeast caused heavy damage along the New England coast. Below—This picture from Buffalo, N. Y., illustrates the effect of an 11-inch snowfall, the worst that city has ever recorded in any December in its history.

THREE INJURED AT UNDERPASS

Columbiana Motorists, Enroute
North on Route 14, Forced Off Road by Truck

Three Columbiana persons were injured when a sleeping truck driver crowded their automobile off the road on Route 14, just this side of the Pennsylvania railroad underpass, at 8 a. m. today.

State Patrolman C. W. Cale, who investigated, said C. M. Hoover, 55, of Columbiana, had to get clear off the road when the truck, operated by Leslie Weston, 25, of Cleveland, came toward him on the wrong side of the road.

Hoover was enroute north, while the truck was proceeding toward Salem.

The Columbiana man's machine skidded and upset on the other side of the road when he attempted to get back onto the highway. He suffered a head and thumb injury. His wife, Lottie, 49, had her left arm sprained and Waldo Horst, 27, of R. D. 1, Columbiana, the third passenger, received a wrenched back and a bump on the head.

HOUSE PASSES FARM BILL TO BREAK UP JAM

Helps to Remove Block
Against Roosevelt
Program

BARKLEY SEES
SENATE PASSAGE

Will Differ From House
Measure In Only
Two Respects

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—House passage of crop control legislation gave administration forces today their first effective lever for breaking up the legislative jam which has blocked President Roosevelt's special session program.

Senator Barkley, Democratic leader, predicted the senate would approve early next week a farm bill differing from the house measure in only two respects, the degree of compulsion and the methods of aiding farmers financially
when prices are depressed.

The house meanwhile will begin consideration Monday of the wage-hour bill, which has aroused even greater controversy than the farm program.

When that is out of the way, its chieftains hope there will be time to pass the President's bill to stimulate residential building. Senate leaders also want to take up that legislation next week after complet-

A house leader said privately that Secretary Wallace, who criticized the senate farm measure as too restrictive, told him he would "much rather go along with the house bill."

It authorizes an elaborate system of farmer-approved compulsory controls on marketing of wheat, corn, cotton, rice and tobacco, erected on a foundation of the present soil conservation practices and benefit payments.

In the most turbulent meeting
since the session began, house leaders rolled up a 2 to 1 majority to pass the measure. The vote was 267
to 130.

It was the first vote on any item on the four-point program for which President Roosevelt called congress into special session. A majority rolled up a 2 to 1 majority to pass the measure. The vote was 267
to 130.

Only a few minutes before the roll call, the administration narrowly escaped defeat on a proposal initiated by Republicans to send the controversial legislation back to the agriculture committee for complete overhauling. The 209-to-197 decision was much closer than sponsors of the bill had anticipated.

They said many members wanted almost any other type of farm program but decided to accept the committee's legislation after losing the motion to recommit.

POTTERS MARCH MONDAY NIGHT

More Than 3,000 Unionists of Tri-State Area to Take Part In Boycott Demonstration

EAST LIVERPOOL, Dec. 11.—
More than 3,000 unionists of the tri-state area will march with heads of Ohio valley industries of this district Monday night as the highlight of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters' "boycott day" against Japanese merchandise.

William Green, American Federation of Labor president, will speak at the parade. Capt. F. X. A.
Eble, president of the Made-In-America club of New York City, will address a mass demonstration
in the afternoon.

The program launches an effort to make the boycott nation-wide pursuant to the resolution adopted at the Denver convention of the American Federation of Labor.

Sebring Potters To Join Boycott Move

SEBRING, Dec. 11.—The Sebring N. B. O. P. committee became the Sebring labor committee yesterday when enamel workers' local union in the Strong Manufacturing plant sent representatives to join the pottery locals' committeemen.

The committee's present activity, that of sponsoring a boycott of Japanese goods, has advanced to the planning of signs at the east, west and south highway entrances to the village. Chairman Charles Jordan reported. The signs will carry the "Buy American" message.

The sub-committee in charge of the boycott will meet Sunday to plan further moves. The group will map a canvass of the village to obtain pledges not to buy or sell Japanese-made articles, will arrange for the distribution of boycott placards furnished by the N. B. O. P. and will lay plans for a mass meeting in support of the program.

34 ARE KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

British Are Shocked By Worst Rail Tragedy
In 22 Years

(By Associated Press)
CASTLECAIRY, Scotland, Dec. 11.—
Haggard rescue workers, hampered by a swirling snowstorm, dug into the battered wreckage of two passenger trains today for additional victims of Britain's worst railway disaster in 22 years.

The death toll mounted to 34
when one of the injured men died in a hospital and four more bodies,
one of them a woman, were added to the rows of dead in a wooden mortuary shed near the track.

Others, possibly including children, still may be pinned within the wreckage. Of the 91 persons injured, 24 still were being treated in hospitals.

Six of the recovered dead were women and one was a child.
A crack Scottish express, speeding through blinding snow from Edinburgh to Glasgow just after dark yesterday, ripped into the rear of another train which had stopped on the main line tracks.
The first two cars of the express were splintered and its locomotive ploughed up an embankment.

The strangest story out of the disaster was that of Gordon Dickson of Edinburgh, who was hurled from a coach by the terrific impact but escaped injury and took part in the rescue work.

The first person he helped from the wreckage was his mother, who unknown to him had been a passenger on another coach. She, too, was unscathed.

Several members of the Cameron Highlanders regiment, on leave, were among the dead.

It was the greatest death toll of a railway disaster since 1915 when 158 persons died in a wreck at Gretna Green.

Reports Favorable On Legion Proposal

The Columbiana county council of the American Legion, which recently voted in favor of a bill to take the profit out of war, heard at its meeting in Columbiana Friday most favorable reports from district congressmen.

Letters were read from Senator
Robert Bulkley and Congressman Lawrence Imhoff, who indicated the bill had their wholehearted approval. Senator Vic Donahay, in a letter, said he would keep the bill in mind when it came up for consideration.

Reports of the various county council committees were also heard.
Harry Lundgren, county commander, presided. The 14 Legionnaires attending from Charles H. Carey post
No. 56 of Salem were headed by Commander Virgil Rakestraw.

The county council's next meeting, on Jan. 14, will be held at East Palestine.

380 FIND HAVEN IN PACIFIC

Luxury Ship President Hoover on Reef
Near Formosa

(By Associated Press)
MANILA, Dec. 11.—All passengers of the reef-bound trans-Pacific liner President Hoover were landed safely on barren, volcanic Hoishoto island near Formosa today, several hours after the $8,000,000 luxury vessel went aground.

Radio reports said the passengers numbered at least 380.

Two U. S. destroyers meantime streaked northward from Manila, approximately 500 miles from the helpless ship, and the liner Empress of Austria changed her course to reach the vessel. The German ship Preussen stood by the Hoover.

Tell of Rescue
Many hours after the 21,900-ton liner struck in the darkness this morning, globe wireless received a message saying the passengers had been landed on the volcanic island, some 50 miles northeast of Formosa's southern tip, and 18 miles off-shore.

"All passengers safe, landed island," said the dispatch, received at 1:25 p. m. (12:25 a. m. in Salem).

Sources conflicted regarding the number of the liner's passengers and her predicament.

In San Francisco, it was reported there were 650 passengers and 408 crew. Information here said approximately 380 passengers, including 300 Chinese steerage, and 333 crew.

Hong Kong dispatches reported the liner, one of the American merchant marine's five major ships, was pounding heavily with a large hole in her bow, but line officials here and at San Francisco headquarters said they were without such information.

No Word as to Cause Dollar Line officials said they had not received information concerning the cause of the finding. The ship was making its first journey over a new course between Japan and Manila, where she was due today.

Maps indicated treacherous coral shoals extend out from half to three quarters of a mile off the island.

Confirmation that the passengers were safe came in various messages, which added that ship's officers, headed by Capt. George Yardley, veteran trans-Pacific skipper, were setting up emergency headquarters on the island.

Dollar officials here said their advice indicated weather conditions were fine and the sea moderating, and that Captain Yardley landed the passengers because he decided to take every precaution.

How the passengers were moved to the island was not learned, but it was assured the transfer was without incident, since no word was received from the vessel until all had been taken ashore.

875 Pay On Taxes Under New Method

pired Friday and Mr. Dawson would be possible.

Under the old law delinquencies
could be paid in six installments.
The measure expiring Friday permitted payment of the unpaid balances in four additional installments.

WHO SAYS SO?

If you're a citizen of the United States, someone has asked you to believe within the last few days.

That the "recession" is a conspiracy by new deal opponents to scare the daylight out of President Roosevelt.

That in this way they plan to seize control of the government and dictate its policies from now on.

That Mr. Roosevelt has seen through all this and if critics don't stop lambasting his half baked scheme of making the population lift itself by its own bootstraps he will fly into a rage and tear them to pieces with his bare hands.

That the only safe thing is for the country to adopt an attitude of "Be quiet, dear, papa is thinking" so as not to upset the presidential equilibrium—that it should rally 'round the new deal for a second excursion in the direction of the Promised Land, at advanced prices.

Americans also have been asked to believe that the only thing holding back instantaneous recovery is the fact Mr. Roosevelt doesn't choose to become the political reincarnation of Calvin Coolidge.

They are being asked to believe new deal opponents have a plan all ready for doing what Mr. Roosevelt failed to do after he took office in 1933 on an anti-depression platform; namely, to pull recovery out of a hat by rapid magic.

These things very likely are palpable nonsense. Yet, people are believing them. Mr. Roosevelt's devoted followers actually think business has gangued up on their hero because the impossible has happened and he is having to worry about a "recession."

On the other side are many who earnestly believe the "recession" would disappear—snap! like that—if the President dissolved a lozenge in his mouth and grabbed the nearest microphone to deliver a half-hour message of sweetness and light to businessmen.

This all leads to one conclusion, more important than any of the statistics, records and theories which may be dragged into the case to prove or disprove that the United States is in serious trouble at the moment.

That conclusion is that the most serious trouble the country faces is extremism in its thinking and talking.

When Americans begin to believe nonsense and get the jitters, look out. That's what happened at the beginning of the untidy little revolution Mr. Roosevelt and the brain trusters have been improvising. It's what has landed the country where it is today—at the end of the line to the Promised Land, with that fabulous place now reported awaiting occupation back where the country started from when the search began, away back in 1933.

"Who says so?" should become the slogan of the hour.

ONE YEAR GONE

Dec. 11, 1936—the whole world, it seemed, was crouched at radio sets to hear King Edward tell why he was giving up the world's proudest throne.

The king, it was agreed later, surpassed expectations. Even if his speech had been only half as good, it still would have been radio's 1936 high spot.

He abdicated. Editorial writers from pole to pole philosophized. It wasn't, they told Edward, so bad not being a king once you got used to it.

There was, of course, "the woman I love." June 3—she and Edward are married on the estate of Charles Bedaux near Tours. They go to Austria for a honeymoon. The press—everybody else—rhapsodizes.

Comes autumn. The honeymoon is over. Edward—the Duke of Windsor—says publicly he is not content to live a life of leisure. He will study housing and working conditions. He will begin in Germany, then come to the United States.

Yes he will—on his good behavior—jibe his American critics, and they start to work with hammer and tongs. He shouldn't have gone to Germany. He shouldn't have been friendly with Charles Bedaux, who is unfair to organized labor. He shouldn't have—but oh well what does it matter?

At the end of a year off the throne, Edward is sitting in Paris biting his thumb. He should get out his clippings, if he has any, and read what the editorial writers said a year ago—that not being a king isn't so tough when you get used to it.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—This seems a good day to add to the Yuletide cheer with a few arpeggios from the harmonica Larry Alder sent over from London. My wife seems to think that every time I practice I'll get caught up in the chromatic lever and emerge with a hare-lip or something.

That's because the first day I had it I huffed and puffed the lining off my upper plate. Too ambitious. I was. Starting off with Ravel's Bolero. Today I'll take off with something sweet and low, "Goodnight Sweetheart," for instance. (Voice. Sex sneaking in!)

Notice how clearly I tootle the first note. The technique is to cover four holes with your mouth, the three to your left with your tongue and blow into the fourth. And for that wah-wah tremolo, you simply jiggle your cupping hand. Anyway it beats the zither. If I keep on as good as this I'll probably be making a debut at the Metropolitan. Maybe Lucius Beebe will loan me his purple-tinted dress suit for the triumph. Can't you see me being led to the Whitney box while the vast audience stands and cheers? Ah, the wasted columning years!

And young Larry Adler. Just a broth of a boy. Little did he wot in sending me this harmonica named for him that he was bringing on professional eclipse. All over London his posters read—King of the Harmonica! And now another King has lost his crown. Life is like that. A King today and just one of the crowd tomorrow. But he must be brave. Chin up and cheerio. Hawkins, my three-stud black pearls and Lady Dinwiddle's cigaret case. The one with the green jade edgings, we must be gay!

It is tough to detour a young fellow at the peak of his career, but I cannot let mawkish sentimentality stand in the way. After all, my public is first. I better unhook my collar. Blowing this way I'm beginning to heave a mite. You can't expect a fellow leading a sedentary life to be long-winded. There are many novices on the harmonica who blow themselves bug-eyed before they even master "Over the Waves." The proper way is to take things easy. After all, about all there is to this racket is inhaling, exhaling, awaying a bit and rolling the eyes. Also glance at my foot work. How on a high note I rise gently on the balls of my feet. Neat, eh what!

I might as well switch to something heavier. A number with a few trills and a lingering cadenza or so. Then on to the quick stuff, such as those up-and-down scales in the Rhapsody in Blue. From one end of the harmonica to the other in lightning slides. Nice going over. Puffing a little to be sure, but what would you expect. Now for Pop Goes the Weasel, triple time.

Don't look now, but I think I'm bleeding in the corners of the mouth. Nothing to worry about. Art is often a cruel master. But no "Dying Egypt Dying" stuff for me. How glorious the quality called courage. See, I'm smiling. There's no cause for alarm. Everybody keep their seats. I assure I'll be all right. I'm perfectly dandy. This dizziness will pass. I've swayed worse than this lots of times without blowing a harmonica and got home all right. Just a blown-out fuse on a high note, I suppose. Hear the bells ring and is this room spinning! I'm glad nobody sent me a French horn.

I hate to keep complaining, but my right wrist is throbbing great guns. That's from the humming bird action of my hand for the tremolo effects. Also my tongue feels all swollen and ragged at the edges. For pity sake, look at it in the mirror. It suggests a gob of raw hamburger. And it may be because of a poor light, but it appears as though I've blown out my left tonsil. Start out to blow a few gentle arias on the harmonica and wind up looking like a tough day at the slaughter house.

THE STARS SAY

Sunday's horoscope is a very important one, with social, intellectual, philanthropic and religious matters under excellent stimuli for growth and expression. Adventure and romance also figure, but in all there is need of discretion and a close curb on tongue and temper, as quarrels might undermine much constructive work and personal happiness. Be wise with writings and shun possible litigation.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of very important activities, with much growth, expansion and prosperity, if they will control quick and caustic speech, strife and careless writings, and shun litigation. The private associations promise adventure, romance and novel experience.

A child born on this day may be energetic, ambitious, quick and biting in speech, crafty in writings or contracts, but personally friendly, likable, romantic, adventurous and fond of the unusual or experimental. Elders are its friends.

For Monday, December 13.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a day of decided opportunity for growth, expansion, promotion and gain, both in business and employment. Secret elements or intriguing circumstances may figure; be wise in these. Seek promotion, favors from superiors and aim high, but with industry and sound plans and propositions. Emotional urges also seek expression.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of excellent promise for promotion, preferment, financial collaboration from high places, and worthwhile culminations for application, diligence and sound projects. The private and sentimental lives also have their gratifications. Secret matters call for discretion.

A child born on this day may be capable, industrious, steadfast and also proud, ambitious and responsible. It will likewise be gentle, lovable and sentimental, attracting many friends.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

NIGHTMARE

RECENTLY I received a letter from a physician who specializes in the practice of pediatrics. That specially deals with the diseases of infants and children. The doctor wrote me about nightmares in children, how they suffer from such attacks and how worried their parents are in consequence. He believes this symptom is often the result of negligence and points out that it may prove to be a stumbling block to the growth and development of the child. He asked me to write on the subject and to emphasize the importance of proper care for this disorder.

There is an old-fashioned idea that nightmares have little significance and indicate no more than some sort of digestive disturbance. It was a common thought that the symptom was due to overeating or perhaps followed indulgence in too much dessert.

Terrible to Child

No one but the child can appreciate the terrible fright of a nightmare. Though few of us in adult life have escaped this experience, the child cannot dismiss it with the ease that we do. Frequently, repeated nightmares seriously interfere with the sleep and complete rest so essential for a growing child.

This trouble is a too common cause of excessive fatigue, underweight, nervousness, restlessness and irritability. These signs are frequently seen in the so-called nervous child.

My doctor friend points out that nightmare is often the violent expression of some fixed and constant fear or dread. He states that the easily-frightened child is one who harbors such a fear in his subconscious mind, and which in sleep takes the form of a nightmare.

To overcome this fear the child should be comforted and not scolded or otherwise disciplined. My advice to the parent is always to be sympathetic, making every quiet effort to determine just why the child is frightened.

Perhaps he has been listening to "hair-raising" episodes over the radio. Some well-meaning friend or relative may have been telling the child about the "bogey-man" or goblin. There is no doubt that listening to such stories may cause a sensitive child to suffer from nightmares.

Children who are easily excited and nervously overstimulated should be guarded against disturbing and nerve-racking experiences. They should be protected from bullying or teasing playmates. Above all, they should have no exciting stories before bedtime. The evening meal should be simple, consisting of easily-digested foods.

If the child has a nightmare and cries out in his sleep, it is best to awaken him and question him about the dream. Point out that there is no need for fear, and make sure before the lights are turned out that he has been reassured and the tension gone.

If the nightmares persist, it is probable there is some neurotic disorder. Under such circumstances a doctor should be consulted.

The Highest Motive

That passage of John which tells us of God sending us the gift of His only begotten Son begins by emphasizing the motive, why God gave us His Son. "God so loved the world."

Surely, love is the highest motive and it compelled God to do what He did.

Even here, more important than the gift is the motive for it. Men make gifts to men and also to God. Some do it from a sense of duty. Some, because they feel obligated. Some, because it is conventional to do so. Some, because they get satisfaction out of giving. Some, perhaps only few, because they hope to be seen and praised. These are all motives, but surely they are not the most worthy. Unless love for the recipient prompts the gift it is somewhat tainted. Even a kiss came from the lips of a hypocrite. As we go into Christmas may these words ever be before us, "God so loved the world."

Sunday school, 9:45—(Revelation 21:1-7); Charles W. Youtz, superintendent.

One of the privileges of the Christian is to enjoy and to be strengthened by friendship and fellowship with Jesus Christ, our Savior and fellow-Christians. Christian people are bound together because of the faith and belief which is founded in God. Here is a common experience. Thus the world may seem small to Christian people who are part of the Kingdom of God which reached around the world. It is true that sin and wickedness may place a barrier between nations and peoples. It is the Gospel of Jesus Christ that can make all peoples be one in brotherhood and fellowship. Christian fellowship can work wonders.

Morning worship, 11:00—Sermon: "The Holy Bible, Fountain of Life and Light."

This Sunday around the world is being observed as Universal Bible Sunday, as sponsored by the American Bible Society. Nations and peoples walk and live in darkness of sin, hate, selfishness and unbelief. Darkness brings fear and distress. The Holy Scriptures are the inspired Word of God and can be the means of giving all the world a new vision of life that is abundant and of Light that comes from God. Bible study and Bible reading will bring people a fuller knowledge of God and a better understanding of the desired goal of Christian Brotherhood and the saving grace of Jesus Christ.

Freddie's Troubles
In Court Near End

(By Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES, Dec. 11.—Aunt Mylicent Bartholomew pulled the strings tight on young Freddie Bartholomew's purse today with a court decision naming her guardian of the 13-year-old film actor's estate.

The ruling yesterday virtually wound up the mass of litigation in which Freddie has been tangled for nine months.

Only one suit is pending—that of Freddie's former agents, Myron Selznick and Co., for 10 per cent of his earnings. The concern contends its contract with Freddie was broken.

Nov. 8. The suit asks $39,600 but does not state how that figure was reached. Trial date has not been set.

Evidence showed that while Freddie earned $100,000 the past two years, his estate was valued at $19,188.13.

The new worthy matron and patron gave short talks. The grand installing officer, Mrs. Rein, gave Mrs. Andrews a gavel, which was a gift from Mr. Andrews.

A gift to Mrs. Andrews from the worthy patron was a lovely wrist corsage. Other corsages were given installing officers.

The decorations in the east, arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Clay, were appropriate for the holiday season. In silver letters in an archway were the figures 1938. Large silver bells were hung in the arch. A lovely part of the decorations were a star in the emblematic colors and baskets of flowers and ferns.

Among the Guests
Mrs. Viola Grimm, Mrs. C. E. Cordrey and daughter, Eloise of Cleveland, sisters and niece of Mrs. Andrews, were among other guests from Youngstown, Minerva, Cleveland, Lisbon, Columbiana and nearby towns.

A meeting Jan. 3 will be followed by a reception in honor of Mrs. E. M. Jenkins, of Salem chapter, new deputy worthy matron for District 13. Perry lodge and Salem City lodge of the Masons have been invited to attend.

Christmas Gifts for Milady Should Have Lure

Christmas gifts for milady should be romantic and alluring as well as practical. Whether the lady in question be housekeeper or office worker, no matter her age, she welcomes some holiday token which is charming and intimate. For an intimate gift there is nothing more appropriate than a lovely negligee or nightdress. Jane Walsh is wearing one of pale pink organdie with puffed sleeves which is worn over a square-necked nightgown of pale pink satin and ecru lace. Another favorite in boudoir apparel is shown by Loretta Young. It is fashioned on Empire lines and is of rose-beige lace and satin with its high waistline marked by a wide, draped sash band held in place by a jeweled ring. For a more casual gift, accessories always offer a solution. Ann Sothorn models a chic black ensemble which includes suede handbag in a new triangular shape and black suede gloves.

When the news of the accident was brought to him, Carter had sobered as suddenly as a man plunged into an icy bath. His former dignity had returned to a large degree, with the advent of responsibility. He was no longer merely a useless and burdensome adjunct to his daughter's career, but for the moment at least, once more head of the family.

Whenever Lucy Lee roused from her stupor she had only one question: "I there any news of Clyde?"

When told that no word of the missing flyers had been received, she closed her eyes and lapsed into unconsciousness again. It appeared that Lucy Lee was slipping away, but heroic efforts on the part of nurses and doctors brought her back.

"Why don't they let me alone?" she moaned. "I don't want to live. I want to die."

"There is some condition radically wrong here," the doctor told Wakefield Carter. "I refer not only to her physical condition, which is admittedly very serious, but to the mental state. The child has no desire to live. His keen glance probes. 'Have you any idea why this should be so? Who is this Clyde for whom she's asking?'"

"A friend. An old friend she has known all her life. From our home town, Doctor Allen. A boy named Clyde Dixon."

"Were they sweethearts? Had they quarrelled?"

"Why no, Doctor. They agreed to disagree in a perfectly friendly fashion. That was several months ago and I am certain Lucy Lee was not unduly distressed over the matter, although naturally she regretted it, as any properly brought up young girl would."

"Nevertheless I maintain there is a mental factor in the situation, Mr. Carter. And it is my opinion Dr. Hale will agree with me."

In falling to the ledge Lucy Lee had struck with full weight upon her back across a rocky outcropping, causing the fracture. Only an operation could determine whether or not there had been a bruising or lesion of the spinal cord itself.

The operation was to be performed by the famous Dr. Hale, and it was the present duty of Dr. Allen to maintain the patient in as favorable a condition as possible for the coming ordeal.

Even Don Ames forgot the publicity angle and became merely humbly concerned for Lucy Lee's recovery.

"You don't mean she might pass out on us before this other man gets here, Doc? I didn't think she was in that bad shape, from what you told us over the telephone."

"I did not believe so myself at that time, Mr. Ames. But frankly, the case appears a great deal more serious than at first."

"But, my God—"

"However, we must hope for the best. With Dr. Hale operating, she will have every chance in the world."

"Conditions, on the whole, were very bright this year," Ramsower said, "but we are not optimistic about next year."

Guy Miller of Ohio State's department of rural economics said that Ohio agriculture probably would be aided next year by the fact that livestock is more plentiful here than in the western corn belt.

"Beauty's A Charm" HARRIET HINSDALE

So once again Lucy Lee Carter made the headlines, even though she was not aware of it.

"Screen Beauty Injured," "Beauty Winner Hurt," "Prize Beauty Dying."

For a day she even crowded Bruce Loring a little on the front page, but only for a day. Then he came back stronger than ever.

"No Word From Loring," "Star Still Missing," "Loring Plane Unreported," "Search on for Star."

With characteristic cynicism Don Ames bemoaned the fact that Lucy Lee's accident, if it had to happen, could not have occurred at a more propitious time.

"What a rotten break for the 'l' gal," he remarked to Wakefield Carter as their car hastened north toward the town where Lucy Lee was in hospital. "Nobody is sorer than I am about what's happened."

Mr. Carter, but it burns me up to think how much more space she would be getting if this Loring story hadn't broken right now. Well, that's the way it goes."

"Mr. Ames," Wakefield Carter responded with dignity, "there is only one thing which matters. My daughter's complete recovery."

When the news of the accident was brought to him, Carter had sobered as suddenly as a man plunged into an icy bath. His former dignity had returned to a large degree, with the advent of responsibility. He was no longer merely a useless and burdensome adjunct to his daughter's career, but for the moment at least, once more head of the family.

Every chance. He is one of the finest surgeons on the Pacific Coast. None better. But I wish we could find the answer to the mental condition."

"You mean her worrying about this guy Clyde Dixon?"

"That—and whatever lies back of it."

Dr. Hale arrived, made his examination and concurred in the opinion of his less famous colleague. An immediate operation was imperative, with the outcome uncertain and more than normally complicated by the patient's lack of response to stimuli. Wakefield Carter waited with white face and taut nerves for the verdict, and Don Ames kept vigil with him.

But Lucy Lee did not die. The operation was pronounced entirely successful. Within two weeks it should be possible to take her home in an invalid coach, without any ill effects. True, she would have to remain in a plaster cast for some time longer in order to give the injured vertebra no shocks while healing. But Lucy Lee could consider herself practically well right now.

Flowers came from the studio, with a note on the stationery of the Supreme Pictures Corporation and signed by the President, per his secretary. The box of flowers was enormous and for a few days Lucy Lee's room was a bower of roses, helianthus and tall pink gladioli.

There were other baskets and boxes of flowers, telegrams from several people, numerous telephone calls of inquiry. For two weeks the studio called up every day but when the reports continued favorable, the calls became less frequent and finally ceased. The publicity office which had been sending out frequent bulletins as to her progress, announced that her complete recovery was assured. Most of the papers printed this, but several did not. The story had run down, in spite of Don Ames' efforts to keep it going.

One day there came a floral basket which could only be described as magnificent. The nurse grew positively coquettish as she placed it on a table where Lucy Lee's eyes might rest on it without the effort of moving her head. She brought the tiny white envelope to the bed with an arch smile.

"Have you any idea why I let, dearie. Why these flowers never cost a cent less than fifty dollars. Orchids and everything!"

Lucy Lee opened the envelope, glanced at the card it contained and turned her eyes away.

"Nurse, would you mind giving the flowers to the patients in the wards? I—I don't think I want to have them in the room. Thank you."

The card slipped from her thin white fingers to the floor and the nurse stopped to recover it. She saw but three words: "Forgive me, Neville."

Quietly she took the basket out. For the first time in the history of the hospital there were orchids that day beside the beds of ward patients.

What was there to forgive, Lucy Lee thought wearily. It was all so unimportant now. She didn't blame Neville. Probably he couldn't help being the sort of person he was. And he had warned her.

She remembered the time in Atlantic City when he had said: "Don't trust me, my dear. Every woman who has done that, has regretted it."

Pearl was right. She had been just too dumb to understand. And as for Pearl—well she only hoped she would never see her again. Not so much on her own account but because of Daddy Carter.

The papers continued to be filled with stories of the Bruce Loring airplane disaster. At the end of two weeks without any word, hope for the safety of the two men was definitely abandoned.

There appeared to be little doubt that the bodies of both Bruce Loring and Clyde Dixon lay on some bleak Mexican mountainside, buried beneath the wreckage of the new plane of which they had been so proud and so confident.

Don Ames, calculating the amount of space devoted to the story all over the world, was incredulous. Not so much because of the disaster, although he admitted it was a tough break for both of the boys, but because neither one of them was alive to cash in on the ballyhoo!

To all appearance Bruce Loring and his companion had vanished as effectively as though instead of heading their plane for Mexico they had sent it straight through the ether to the shores of some planet, with no possible hope of return. Another chapter had been written in the annals of unusual mysteries of the air.

Within a short time it was possible for Lucy Lee to return to Hollywood in an invalid coach. Dr. Hale pronounced her condition excellent, ordered several weeks more in bed, and then the patient was to begin walking by slow and easy degrees.

"That's swell," Don Ames remarked. "We'll send out a bulletin to the waiting world."

Lucy Lee's bed had been moved near the French doors opening on a balcony toward the view over the city and Ames was lounging in an easy chair beside it, a few days after her return.

"The walking world has forgotten all about me," Lucy Lee replied without rancor. "It doesn't care whether I'm alive or dead."

"Sure it doesn't," the publicity man asserted cheerfully. "Who said it did? But what difference does that make? It's our business to make it what it cares. The poor dear stupid public hasn't got a real, honest-to-o-God original thought in its collective skull, baby. We just have to feed it what it fondly imagines are thoughts."

"It was reading in Drusilla's column this morning that Neville Preston's company is back from the mountain," Lucy Lee answered slowly, her mind turning away from herself. "I suppose Pearl has gone to a hotel. She sent for her clothes yesterday."

QUAKERS SPANK NILES IN BASKETBALL OPENER

Salem High Quintet Rolls To 24-11 Victory In First Game Of 1937-38 Campaign

Quakers Hold Edge Throughout Contest After Gaining 7-2 Lead In First Quarter; Niles Never Is Threat; Reserves Triumph

Coach Herb Brown and his Salem High school cagers are off again. And on the right foot, too.

Brown's newest contribution to a list of successful Quaker basketball teams opened up the 1937-38 season last night with an easy 24 to 11 triumph over Niles McKinley's Red Dragons at the Washington Junior High court in Niles.

The Quakers had things all their own way in their initial start of a 16-game campaign. They looked rough in spots, but then that's to be expected in an opening game.

Niles never threatened to make things "hot" for the Quakers. Brown's charges piled up a five-point lead, 7-2, in the first quarter and increased their advantage to 12 points, 16-4, by halftime.

Scoring slowed down in the first half with the Quakers tallying only three points to Niles two as Coach Brown made numerous substitutions and juggled his lineup in attempting to develop new combinations. The Quakers led at the end of the third quarter, 19-6.

Both teams scored five points in the final quarter. Brown continued experimenting with his lineup in this period, sending 10 players into action.

The first half produced the best performance of the game. The Quakers worked cleverly under the Niles basket several times during the first and second quarters and set up a defense stiff enough to limit Niles to two field goals.

Pass work was considerably better in the first half than it was in the second when the action became rough and tumble, making good ball-handling and passing practically impossible. Two players left the game in the second half because of too many fouls.

Brown's starting combination appeared to be the best of any the Quakers used in the game although it was minus husky Max Lutch, who missed practice this week because of a cold.

Leonard Bonnell, newcomer to the varsity this season, replaced Lutch in the starting lineup and showed up well defensively. Bonnell broke up several Niles passes and dragged down a good share of the rebounds while he was in action.

Lutch broke into the lineup twice during the game, but didn't receive much of a chance to display the ability that made him one of the most valuable of the Salem players last season.

Working with Bonnell in the starting lineup were Ollie Olea and Jim Dickey, forwards, and Gilbert Everhart and Bill Schaeffer guards. Schaeffer, who showed possibilities of developing into a star point man, led the scoring with seven points, made on two field goals and three free throws.

Olea, who was second high in scoring with six points, and Everhart did most of the ball-handling. Dickey also figured in the mid-court ball-handling, but did little work in close.

The most encouraging part of the Quakers performance was the scrap shown by the players in going after the ball. Niles received few scoring opportunities mainly because the Quakers battled stubbornly throughout the game to keep possession of the leather.

Although Niles had practically as much height as the Quakers, Bonnell, Schaeffer and Lutch took all but one or two of the rebounds off the backboard.

Niles scored only one of its five field goals from close range. The others were on shots from the side of the court and from near foul line territory. The Quakers tried few long shots until the second half. Olea was the lone Salem player to connect from long range.

While Niles was terribly weak in foul shooting, making only one of 12 free throws, the Quakers were just the opposite and tallied on 10 of their 17 tosses from the foul line.

Here's how the scoring went: Bonnell tallied first for the Quakers after gaining possession of the ball when Schaeffer's close-range attempt missed. Schaeffer added two free throws before Everhart connected on a side shot before Bonnell converted a foul toss. Griffiths scored a field goal for Niles just before the first quarter ended with the Quakers leading, 7 to 2.

A close shot from under the basket by Schaeffer gave the Quakers their first points in the second quarter. Olea tallied on another close shot before Negro made two points for Niles with a field goal from the side of the court. Schaeffer tipped a rebound into the hoop and Olea made a free throw to run the Quakers' lead to 15 to 4. Schaeffer connected on a free throw before the half closed with Salem leading, 16 to 4.

Niles tallied first in the low-scoring third quarter on Louis's short shot. Dickey converted a free throw and Olea hooped a long shot for the Quakers' only scoring. The period closed with Salem on top, 19 to 6.

Griffiths shot from the side of the court was good for two points for Niles at the start of the final quarter. Dunlap made one foul shot and Everhart two free throws for the Quakers. Griffiths then came back to tally on a free throw and field goal. Dunlap's field goal for the Quakers from near mid-court ended the scoring.

The Quaker reserves also started off in good form in the preliminary game when they whipped the Niles secondaries, 37 to 13.

QUIET OPENING MARKS MEETING OF STATE LOOP

Ohio Conference Names Officers, Discusses Freshman Games

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS, Dec. 11.—Ohio conference coaches and officials turned to a basketball clinic at Capital university today as their annual meeting entered its second day, following a quiet opening session of schedule making.

In contrast to last year's stormy meeting, at which Akron university was ejected from the loop on charges of using ineligible football players, Friday's session was featured by nothing more startling than a mild discussion on whether freshmen teams should be permitted to compete against other freshmen, and the election of officers.

R. F. Martin of Otterbein college was named president of the loop, with M. S. Douglas of Case as vice president. Dr. J. H. Nichols of Oberlin was retained as secretary-treasurer, but Lyle K. Butler of Oberlin will "sit in" for him for a year as he visits Europe.

Paul Landis of Bowling Green replaced "Duke" Hayes of Marietta as head of the Managers' association, composed of the coaches, with Ray Ride, Case coach, going in as Dunlap, f. vice president. Dr. Nichols, secretary of that group, gives way to Butler for a year in that position.

The idea that freshmen teams should be permitted to compete against each other, broached by Coach "Stu" Holcomb of Muskingum and supported by "Doc" Spears of Toledo, was shelved until March by the executive committee. Another suggestion that senior basketball players not be declared ineligible for participation in post-season games with outside teams was voted down.

Spears and his Toledo "Rockers" lost a basketball game when the executive committee ruled that they could not play the Hawaiian All-Stars because the Islanders did not represent an educational institution. The contest, scheduled Jan. 10 at Toledo, was ordered erased from the slate.

In addition to mapping their 1938 football schedules, the coaches set up this spring sports program: Big Six track meet—At Baldwin Wallace May 27 and 28.

Conference swimming meet—At Oberlin March 5.

Conference tennis meet—At Kenyon May 20 and 21.

Conference golf meet—At Denison May 20 and 21.

C. W. Board, director of athletics, and Al Fairfield, professor of physical education at Youngstown college, a non-member, were present at the session in an attempt to line up football games for the 1938 season. Youngstown's first on the gridiron. Board said he hoped to line up at least five games for next year, but he had little luck at the session because most of the league teams had already filled their slates.

BOWLING RESULTS

The first and second place teams in the Federal Bowling league held their positions at the Masonic temple alleys last night, but third place changed hands as the Salisbury Office moved ahead of the Columbiana County Engineers.

Demings continued in first place by taking three games from the Gas Co., while Sanitary Shop remained in second position with two wins over the Salem News. Sanitary Office pulled into third place by winning three games from the Electric Furnace, while the County Engineers were losing three to Brownie's Amoco Gas outfit.

Schmeling To Test Rusty Fight Weapons In Battle With Tub-Thumper Monday

Harry Thomas To Face German Who Is Not Same Fighter As One Who Whipped Brown Bomber; Old Man Time Catching Up With Maxie

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Harry Thomas, the willing whetstone for Max Schmeling's dulled ring weapons, is in the position of a man going over Niagara Falls in a barrel. Nine chances out of ten he won't make it—but, boy, if he does!

If it were not for the memories, ever green, of the Brad-dock-Baer, Schmeling-Louis and Farr-Louis form reversals, the general public would take Monday night's fight between Thomas and Schmeling lightly. However, those three im-broglios have made the fistic clients wary and curious.

Tub-thumping which has boomed extraordinary new qualities in the ring, of course, is the name of the game for Thomas must be ignored. If he were as great as some would have you believe he would have been fighting top bouts long ago. But the fact remains that Schmeling has chosen no second-rater for his first test since Louis. Thomas is a genuine tough article.

The bout will have a third competitor—the old guy with the scythe. Prime importance is attached to Schmeling's age and his 16 months of exile from the ring. Schmeling admits he is 32. Some say he is three years older.

Schmeling brings a war worn but trusty armament into the ring. If he is tuned anywhere near the fighting pitch he was when he spattered the Louis legend it would be no contest. But there is more than a hint that the Black Uhlan is far from his top form.

Max withstood the shots of one of the game's hardest punchers in Louis. Therefore, his friends say, he has nothing to fear from Thomas, whose punches cannot equal the steam the Louis mauls carry. But should Schmeling's legs show signs of age, it should be a long hard bout against a fighter young enough to go 15 rounds at top speed.

New "Missing Link" Between Man, Higher Apes Discovered

By STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH
Associated Press Science Writer
WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—A new "missing link" between man and the higher apes has just been discovered on the Island of Java, the Carnegie Institution of Washington said today.

Dr. G. H. R. Von Koenigswald, Dutch scientist of Bandung, Java, a research associate of the institution, reported he had found part of a skull, the lower jaw, and a number of teeth of this part ape, part human creature near the Solo river.

This ancient man, he added, "is the most primitive fossil man now known" and lived long before the original Pithecanthropus Erectus. The first of this species was found in Java in 1890 and was believed until now to have been the earliest man on earth.

Dr. John C. Merriam, president of the institution said the discovery "is one of the most important finds in many decades."

The new specimen, he said, proves that Pithecanthropus man had progressed above the mental and physical level of the great apes, and also that man has been walking upright and using his hands and brain for about 1,000,000 years.

Previous discoveries of fossilized bones of human beings ranged in age from 12,000 to more than 5,000 years. Pithecanthropus man's age had been fixed at about 500,000 years on the basis of previous findings.

Pennsylvania Has Constitution Week

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11.—Pennsylvania, whose major city was host to the colonial patriots who wrote the United States constitution, began a celebration Friday of the 150th anniversary of its own ratification of the nation's fundamental law.

Under the direction of a commission appointed by Gov. George H. Earle, schools, patriotic groups and churches joined in a three-day series of commemorative events throughout the state.

Programs in public and parochial schools today recalled that 69 delegates from William Penn's domain gave approval in Philadelphia Dec. 12, 1787, to the new constitution written in the same city the preceding Sept. 17 by representatives of the original states.

He'll Have to Wait To See Friend Now

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Michael Donnelly, 35, a WPA worker in mellow mood, remembered early today he had a friend in the fire department.

Anxious for a chat, Donnelly rang the nearest fire alarm. A fire truck arrived, but not Donnelly's friend. Donnelly moved on to another fire box. Then another. When he turned in his fifth false alarm, his friend still failed to show up—but two policemen did.

(P. S.: Police said it might be some time before Donnelly gets to see his friend.)

Child Fire Victim

FLEMINGSBURG, Ky., Dec. 11.—Acquilla Gallagher, 5, son of a laborer, was burned to death yesterday when fire destroyed the boxcar dwelling in which he lived with his parents and a baby brother, Alvin 3.

Mrs. Gallagher saw the home burst into flames while she was getting a bucket of drinking water at a neighbor's home. She dashed back and rescued Alvin.

Man Held In Paris May Be Missing Son Of Fremont Woman

FREMONT, Dec. 11.—Mrs. A. C. Ludwig, member of a prominent Fremont family, said today the aid of the state department at Washington would be sought to obtain the return to the United States of a man held in Paris, France, under the name of Ludwig James Parkes, 35, on a charge of attempting to kill a gendarme.

She expressed belief that Parkes was her son, James Parkes Ludwig. She said her son escaped from the Toledo state hospital for insane after being committed there for treatment of a persecution complex.

Ludwig, an Ohio State university graduate, owns a farm at nearby Helena, where his wife lives.

Hunt Cleveland, Believed Kidnaped

AKRON, Dec. 11.—Summit county sheriff's deputies searched highways at nearby Hudson today for a man identified as Earl Richardson, about 34, of Cleveland, who they said apparently was abducted and robbed near a roadhouse on Route 8.

Richardson's automobile, its motor running, was found in a ditch near the tavern (Blue Bird Inn) where, waitresses said, he had "flushed" a roll of currency while drinking with two strangers.

Dorothy Hunt, 29, and Olive Hooper, 29, the waitresses, told Deputy Sheriff John Charnoski one of the strangers appeared to become helplessly drunk. Richardson, whom they knew as an occasional customer, helped the intoxicated man's companion carry him to their automobile, the waitresses said.

Charnoski said a customer arrived at the tavern a few minutes later and told that he passed an automobile in the ditch. The officer said Richardson evidently was tricked into pushing the strangers' machine and then abducted.

The waitresses told officers Richardson boasted to the other men that he had "cleaned up" in a gambling game.

Charnoski said officers searched roadways in the vicinity on the theory that Richardson had been beaten unconscious and thrown from his assailants' automobile.

Compensation Given To Workers of WPA

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The Works Progress Administration announced today a ruling by Administrator Harry L. Hopkins that recipients of unemployment compensation benefits would not be barred from partial WPA aid.

Twenty-one states and the District of Columbia will begin unemployment compensation Jan. 1 to insured workers who lose their jobs. Payments will vary according to state laws, from $5 to $15 a week for 14 to 16 weeks.

The WPA explained that those receiving this unemployment compensation would be eligible for WPA aid to bring their total income to a "security wage."

Of the 21 states in question, Pennsylvania and New York have more than half of all insured workers.

Lamour Will Quit; She Wants a Baby

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 11.—Dorothy Lamour served notice on her studio today that she would quit pictures Dec. 10, 1938, to become a mother.

"I want a baby of my own and I want it before I am 25," she said.

The actress, who has had roles in "The Hurricane" and "Jungle Princess," notified the studio through her attorney. She rejected a studio suggestion that she adopt a child, the attorney said.

The New Orleans actress was 23 yesterday. She is the wife of Herbert Kay, orchestra leader, with whose band she sang before coming to Hollywood.

Will Stand Trial For Fatal Beating

CLEVELAND, Dec. 11.—George Hisney, 63, laborer, was bound over to jury today for a fatal beating charged with fatally beating his ailing wife Tuesday when his dinner wasn't ready.

The body of Mrs. Mary Hisney, 62, who had recently undergone an operation, was found in their home Wednesday. Detective Sergeant James Hogan said Hisney admitted he struck her when he found his dinner had not been prepared.

State Loses Funds In Tax Amendment

COLUMBUS, Dec. 11.—Walter W. Mitchell, state sales tax administrator, asserted today that Ohio would lose $12,000,000 in 1938 because of an amendment to the sales tax law that permits persons claiming to be out-of-state residents to sign tax exemption certificates. Urging appeal of the amendment, Mitchell said that exemptions since it became effective three months ago had increased 100 per cent over exemptions during the first six months of the year.

Theater Attractions

Rose Stradner and Edward G. Robinson in "The Last Gangster", at the State Sunday through Tuesday.

"The Last Gangster," a gangster film to end all gangster films, comes to the State Sunday through Tuesday, with Edward G. Robinson in the leading role. James Stewart, Rose Stradner, Lionel Stander, Douglas Scott, John Carradine and Sidney Blackmer have supporting roles.

The picture deals with the fall of an American public enemy. Robinson does a ten-year prison term, comes out with one desire—to murder his wife and the man she married after divorcing Robinson. The gangster's son, whom he loves dearly, unwittingly brings the death of the public enemy.

The latest Jones family film and a historical drama make up an excellent double bill for the State's Wednesday and Thursday program. "Hot Water" featuring the usual "Jones family" picture cast of Jed Prouty, Spring Byington (Mr. and Mrs. Jones), Shirley Dean, the oldest daughter, Russell Gleason, Kenneth Howell and June Carlson as the children. Florence Roberts as the grandmother, George Ernest, Billy Mahan, Joan Marsh and Marjorie Weaver.

The dramatic portion of the bill is "King Solomon's Mines," a Gaumont-British production starring John Loder, Anna Lee and Roland Young. The story concerns the adventures of a party of Englishmen with Zulu tribes in Africa which derive their immense wealth from the fabulous "King Solomon" gem mines.

Next week's billing at the State concludes Friday and Saturday with the musical, "Blossoms on Broadway." Edward Arnold, Shirley Ross and John Trent have the leading acting roles while Rufe Davis, William Frawley, Weber and Fields, Frank Craven and others, have comedy and entertainment parts.

The comedy "It's Love I'm After," with Leslie Howard, Bette Davis and Olivia DeHavilland, will be seen at the State for the last time tonight.

The Grand opens the week with an action drama, "Submarine D-1," which features Pat O'Brien, Wayne Morris and George Brent, with Doris Weston, recently seen in Dick Powell's "The Singing Marine." "Submarine D-1" will be seen Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the Grand.

Adventures of U. S. navy submarine workers provide a theme for the picture, which marks the most recent film appearance of Morris, who won stardom with one picture, "Kid Galahad."

Accused Kidnap of Dr. Seder, Aged Dry Leader, Takes Stand

(By Associated Press)

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Dec. 11.—Arrested Booth began his battle against a death penalty today by charging federal agents beat him to obtain two statements about the kidnaping of Dr. James I. Seder, 79, retired minister.

Booth admitted, however, that he, John Travis, 25, and Orville Adkins, 24, abducted the aged dry leader and took him to an abandoned mine. Dr. Seder died Nov. 15, four days after his return from his imprisonment.

The 46-year-old bald defendant testified that in the last 11 years he had been subject to "falling spells."

Booth added that in the last five years he had been arrested twice on larceny warrants. He said he was gassed four times in the World War and had been in eight hospitals since 1919. Booth reiterated he never signed a statement admitting throwing jagged pieces of slate at Dr. Seder while the minister was in the mine.

Federal agents have testified there was no intimidation during Booth's questioning.
